

HOMESEEKERS OF THE RIGHT KIND.

Many Have Their Families With Them and are There to Remain for Good.

NEW TOWNS TO SPRING UP

Those Who Are Not Able to Get Land By Entry Will Buy and Help Build Up Ashley Valley.

Special Correspondence.
Vernal, Aug. 5.—Vernal presents quite an animated scene these days. The registration is proceeding quietly and it is evident that those who have come here are bona fide homeseekers. All express themselves as delighted with the preservation of Ashley valley, and as the preservation is similar country there will be no doubt in the near future many villages spring up. Many of the people have brought their families and effect with them, and if they do not succeed in obtaining suitable places on the reservation will buy land in this valley, and the surrounding country.

Many hundreds of people will avail themselves of the chance to prospect on the reservation and in the forest reserve. The registration is lighter here than was at first anticipated, the total being at the end of the third day, 383. It is doubtful whether the total will exceed 1,500 for Vernal. We are differently situated here, though, than at the other registration points, as almost all come here to make their filings, and we will have about the same crowds as now for the next 60 days or longer.

Quite an interest is being taken in the townsite and there is sure to be quite a demand for lots as soon as they are offered for sale. The government engineers in charge of Mr. Miller from Washington, D. C., are at work now with two gangs in order to have them in readiness. The people are being cured for, and many are camping in the vicinity of Vernal, waiting for the drawing. The road between here and the reservation is lined with teams, many people availing themselves of the chance to look over the situation. The Utah Realty company has on line of stages besides the regular Price-Vernal stage, and a number of surveyors are ready to locate people when the time comes for filings. No lawlessness prevails, and while the scenes are well patronized, the crowds are well in hand.

LITTLE DOING AT VERNAL.

Resentment Felt Against Knockers Organ in Salt Lake City.

Special Correspondence.
Vernal, Utah Co., Aug. 5.—The registration for the drawing of lands in the Uinta reservation, and the consequent influx of people into Vernal, which is the nearest outfitting point for those going out to look over the country to be drawn open, is making things lively in this section of the state. The registration here, however, has been seriously affected by the establishment of a point of registration at Grand Junction.

There is much resentment here toward the Salt Lake Tribune for its course in the whole reservation affair, as it is quite generally believed that had it not been for the absurd stories published in that paper there would have been no registration office located outside this state.

Quite a number of those who have registered at outside points are beginning to come in. Some are coming by private conveyances. Those coming in report that there are stories being circulated at Grand Junction and other points in Colorado to the effect that Vernal is run by the "Mormons," and that the Gentiles are shown scant courtesy. One old fellow who came through in a covered wagon, was so well pleased with the "Mormons" role up and down the streets, shooting and playing rough house generally, and the city was allowed them to go unnoticed, while every Gentile who showed any inclination to make a disturbance was locked up at once.

The influx of so many people into the Ashley valley at this time is a great advertisement for this section of the state, and no doubt many of those who have sold out their holdings elsewhere, are coming to see the country. The registration, will, if disappointed, purchase here, which will result in a general rise in real estate values.

The farmers are all selling good prices for all forms of farm produce, as it is certain that those settling upon the reservation will draw heavily on the farmers of this county for supplies. The magnificent new site tabernacle that has been in course of construction here for several years, is again in the hands of the carpenters, and an effort is to be made to bring the structure to completion. Although it was considered a large building when started, it is now generally admitted that it will hardly come up to the requirements of the stake when completed, owing to the growing population.

The crops generally throughout the county, despite the drought, are a great deal better than last year. Out on the extreme end of the canals there will be some loss of crops, but throughout the main portion of the valley they will be up to the average. The fruit crop, although lighter than last year, is of good quality and will be in big demand this fall. The present season is the first time that a systematic attempt has been made to guard against insect pests, and spraying has been quite general throughout the county. So far the fruit in this section has been remarkably free from worms, and by a little effort it can be kept so.

NEW VOTING DISTRICTS.

County Commissioners Make Several Important Changes in Them.

The county commissioners at their meeting Saturday afternoon made several changes in the voting districts of the county. Owing to the fact that Murray has been advanced from a city of the third class to one of the second class it became necessary under the law to increase its voting districts from two to five. A resolution describing the boundaries of the five districts was introduced by Commissioner Mackay and was adopted by the board. There will be two councilmen elected from each of the five districts this fall. A new district was created in Salt Lake City known as district No. 96. A part of districts 13 and 14 are taken to make up the new district. The boundaries of the three districts now are fixed as follows:
Number 12.—Intersection of Main and Eighth South streets to intersection of Main and Tenth South streets, west to Tenth South and Fifth West streets, north to Fifth West and Eighth South streets, and thence to the beginning.
Number 14.—Intersection of Second West and Sixth South streets, thence west to intersection of Second West and Eighth South streets, west to intersection of Eighth South and Fifth West streets, north to intersection of Fifth West and Sixth South streets and thence east to beginning.
Number 96 (new).—Intersection of Fifth West and Fifth South streets, thence south to Fifth West and Tenth South streets, thence west to Jordan River, down the river to Sixth South, east along Sixth South to beginning. A small territory recently annexed to Bingham canyon is also added to the Bingham voting district No. 82.

MOUSE WAS TOO MUCH.

That is What Colored Preacher Said Regarding Woman's Curiosity.

Rev. L. A. Brown of the Calvary Baptist (colored) church, made an address last evening on the colored branch of the Knights of Pythias; and in the course of his remarks told of a young wife of a Pythian who was over curious and was determined to make her husband give up to her the secrets of the order. This she failed to accomplish, and therefore left him, determined to pry out for herself the initiation mysteries of the Pythians.
"So she went to another town," said the speaker, "and donned the dress of a man. After living in the district a sufficient length of time to be eligible for membership she made application to join the Knights. When it came time for initiation she was ready for the unexpected. As the story goes, the first test of her courage as a Knight was an experience with a snake. This snake was let loose, and, though it made right for the woman and she was not used to them, she drew it forth. She stood the snake pretty well, then they turned loose one of these fuzzy things they call a humbug. The young woman stood that pretty well, too, and never wavered."
Then, as a last test, they brought in a trap with a mouse in it. The trap was set in the middle of the floor, the floor opened, and out jumped a mouse. Right there the young woman reached down to gather the skirts that ought to have been there, and jumped upon the table. That was the point where she failed to stand the test, and where she had to get out."

The pastor announced a "Golden Gate Carnival and Musical Address" to be held Aug. 15 to Aug. 20, to raise funds to pay off the church debt. The carnival will be held in a tent on the vacant lot adjoining the church at Fifth East and Second South streets. The first evening's program will be conducted by Gaidy Carter, organist. The second will be railroad and hotel men's night, the third women's night, and the fourth Ogden night.

UTAH RANGES ARE BEING DEVASTATED

Brush and Forest Fires Destroying Snow and Watersheds Of State.

HOW THEY MAY BE PREVENTED.

James E. Meeks, Supervisor Salt Lake Forest Reserve, Gives Interesting Information on Subject.

To the Editor:

Murray, Utah, Aug. 7.—Forest reserves are created for the purpose of preserving a perpetual supply of timber for home industries, preventing the destruction of the forest cover which regulates the flow of streams, and protecting local residents from unfair competition in the use of forest and range. They are patrolled and protected at government expense, for the benefit of the community and the home builder. We know that the welfare of every community is dependent upon a cheap and plentiful supply of timber; that a forest cover is the most effective means of maintaining a regular stream flow for irrigation and other useful purposes, and that the permanence of the livestock industry depends upon the conservative use of the range. The injury to all persons and industries which result from the destruction of forests by fire and careless use is a matter of history in older countries, and has long been the cause of anxiety and loss in the United States.

The decrease in the summer flow of streams just as they become indispensable to manufacture or irrigation, and the serious decrease in the carrying capacity of the summer range, are conditions that can be improved by conservative handling of forest reserves. Through its watchful fire patrol the forest service guards the property of the resident settler and miner, and preserves the timber and water supply upon which the prosperity of all industries depends. The help it can give to the development of the west may be greatly increased by the co-operation of citizens.

Destructive forest fires are not often set willfully, but far too commonly they result from failure to realize that careless use will be followed by injury and distress to others. The resident or traveler in forest regions who takes every precaution not to let fire escape, and who is active in extinguishing fires which he discovers, contributes directly to the development and wealth of the country and to the personal safety and profit of himself and his neighbors. He who does not assume a great responsibility by endangering not only his own welfare but that of countless others. Citizens holding grazing permits should render their obligation, to not only prevent fires when possible but help to extinguish them when under way. An effort to check a fire before it gains headway may save the permit holder many days hard work. Forest officers have authority to command assistance in extinguishing fires at any time.

The grass fires which have occurred in the vicinity of Salt Lake City during the last two months, have completely denuded the mountain sides of its green forage and left a charred, barren, spectacle, to the regret and injury of all.

The following simple regulations may easily be observed by all:
1. Camp fires must not be larger than necessary.
2. Fires must not be built in leaves, rotten wood, or other places where they are likely to spread.
3. Fires must not be built against large or hollow logs, where it is difficult to be sure when they are completely out.
4. In windy weather and in dangerous places, camp fires must be confined to holes, or by clearing all vegetable matter from the ground around them.
5. A fire must never be left, even for a short absence, before it is completely extinguished.
There is ample legal provision for the punishment of malice or carelessness with fires. The act of June 4, 1897, instructs the secretary in charge of forest reserves to make provisions for their protection against fire and provides for punishment of any violation of his regulations. The act of May 5, 1900, prescribes a maximum fine of $5,000, or two years imprisonment or both, for any person convicted of responsibility for the willful setting of a fire on the public domain, or for suffering a fire to burn on land near any inflammable material. It prescribes a fine of $1,000 for each day that a fire is allowed to burn.

scribes a fine of $1,000, or one year imprisonment, or both, for building a fire and leaving it before it is totally extinguished. Any officer of the forest service may arrest violators of these laws. The fire laws of any state or territory are applicable to forest reserves within its boundaries, and the United States has recourse to them whenever necessary.
The United States may also bring civil action to recover damages caused by fire, no matter how it was set. It is not necessary to prove malice, or even carelessness, or that the fire was set upon government land. Any person responsible in any way for injury to government property is liable for the actual damage.
Very respectfully,
JAMES E. MECKS,
Supervisor Salt Lake Forest Reserve.

Accident Happened Without Warning

On a Grade Crossing—Forty Passengers Were in Danger.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 6.—The fast Pittsburgh flyer, No. 580, on the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad, crashed into an eastbound St. Clair street car at 9:30 tonight, killing a child instantly and fatally injuring six people, while 15 others sustained injuries.

The accident happened without warning, as the conductor had just crossed the railroad tracks to see that the line was clear and had thrown a safety derailer switch to permit the car to pass. The headlight of the train was not visible, nor was its rambling heard until it was but a short distance from the crossing.

The conductor let go the derailer switch in time to throw the rear truck of his car off the track, but not in time to prevent the front end from being struck and the car hurled around until it stood parallel with the railroad track.

The car contained 40 passengers who were bound for their homes and for amusement resorts along the car line. Only a few escaped uninjured, and they were persons occupying the rear seats.
